The writing of a Torah scroll is the 613th commandment of the Torah. Given the many laws about writing a Torah and the precision needed to do so, how does the average Jew write a Torah? Our Sages teach us that if someone writes even one letter, or dedicates any part of the Torah by a charitable contribution, it is considered as a fulfillment of the 613th mitzvah.

This Torah is dedicated by Bernie and Irene Siegel in loving memory of his grandparents,
Joseph and Minnie Berkow.
